Vaudeville at the Park.
In spite of the very unfavorable weather a fair sized crowd saw the vaudeville performance at the Wheeling Park Casino last night. The interest never lagged for a moment, and the programme was thoroughly enjoyed from the rise to the fall of the curtain. Some new features were introduced by the various performers, and they made a decided hit. Everybody present enjoyed the entertainment, and was well repaid for braving the rain. To-night the programme will be repeated, and special motors will run as usual to the Casino.

THE CORNER STONE

Of the New Convent Academy to be Laid Sunday Afternoon.

ALL THE CATHOLIC SOCIETIES

Will Turn out and Take Part in the Parade Preceding the Ceremony, at Which Bishop Donahue Will be the Officiant—An Imposing set of Exercises, Including Addresses, to be Arranged To-day—Archbishop Kain May Speak.

An important event in Catholic circles will occur on Sunday afternoon. It will be the laying of the corner stone of the new St. Joseph's academy for girls, on Eoff street, near Fourteenth, and in attendance at the ceremony will be all the local and suburban clergy, as well as the Catholic societies of this and surrounding towns. Bishop Donahue will likely be the officiant, although the programme of exercises will not be perfected until some time to-day.

The ceremony is set for 3 p. m., and the various organizations that are to participate in the parade preceding it, are called to meet at an earlier hour at their respective halls. Captain George J. Mathison has been selected as chief marshal, and the column will form at St. Alphonsus' church, South Market street, thence marching over the principal thoroughfares to the new building. Several bands will be in line.

As stated the programme of exercises hasn't been arranged yet, but it will include appropriate addresses, probably by the bishop and possibly a layman. Archbishop Kain, of St. Louis, was in the city last night, en route to the seashore. He was a guest at the episcopal residence over night, and hopes are entertained of his being able to remain over until Sunday, in which event he would no doubt make an address at the corner stone laying. This ceremony was scheduled for July 2, but was postponed on account of the delay of the masons, and the postponement has somewhat altered the plans for Sunday's celebration.

All the priests and Catholic societies of surrounding towns have been invited to attend, and as many as can will be present. The new convent school will be completed by next February and it is to be a handsome brick structure, containing school rooms on the first three floors and a dormitory above. The cost is estimated at $22,000. It is being built on the site of the old building, which was nearly fifty years old, but had outlined its usefulness and was condemned as unsafe. The school will be in charge of the Sisters of St. Joseph, whose convent is adjoining.
